Session 4 - Managing Conflict

Scenarios

Table A

Imagine you are rushing to a lesson and someone trips you over, you think this has been done deliberately. How can you resolve this issue?

Table B

You are late for school, you have forgotten your homework and you don't feel very well. You can either:

- a) Turn around and go home, your mum is at work and you have a key
- b) Keep heading to school and speak to someone when you get there about not being well.
- c) Walk via the shop, arrive even later but by this time you may feel better and will be able to get on with your work.

How can you resolve this issue?

Table C

You aren't having a great day, period 1 you got a C4 for talking in Maths, period 2 you were 5 minutes late to English and you have got your least favourite lesson period 3. You have also forgotten your PE kit, you have PE period 5.

How can you resolve this issue?

Table D

You worked hard on your English homework, but have left it at home. You have already forgotten your English homework once before. When the teacher asks you for it you explain and she shouts at you and you know she doesn't believe you have done it.

How can you resolve this issue?

Table E

Several boys in your tutor group are being mean to a girl in Y8. You don't think that she has any friends. Your form tutor doesn't notice the comments and names that they direct at her. She is regularly late for tutor group or doesn't come. You feel sad for her but don't want the boys to fall out with you.

How can you resolve this issue?

Table F

You have fallen out with your best friend and they shove you whilst you are stood in the dining room waiting for your lunch. You shove them back and a fight breaks out between you both. Your Learning Manager steps in and breaks the fight up.

How can you resolve this issue?

Table G

You go to the toilet during a lesson and notice a girl crying next to the sinks, you don't know her but recognise that she is in a year group above yours.

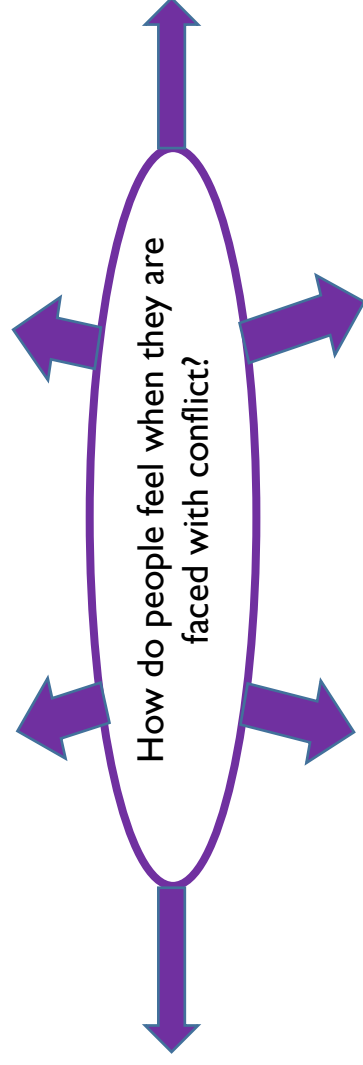

How can you resolve this issue?

Table H

You are on the bus on your way home from school and some students are shouting racist comments to a young man who is sat at the back of the bus. The man asks them to stop, but they continue. You recognise a few of the boys from your year group.

How can you resolve this issue?
